

Running out of money
before you run out of month?

Having to decide whether you're buying laundry soap or dish soap this month? or having to choose between deodorant and shampoo?

The PEPartnership understands how important personal and household hygiene products are, and is working to make these products more visible as necessities to the community at large and to policy makers, and to improve their availability to people in need. We're particularly interested in making these products available on a more reliable basis so that you can better plan your budget and expenditures to make best use of the resources you have available.

To help with product availability, all PEPartnership agencies are using the PEPbase software to both standardize what products are available, and to ensure that, while everyone can have what they need, no one can over-use the system.

The chart below shows the products offered at each agency. Every effort is made to have products on hand, but shortages may occur at times. See the PEPartnership Agencies listing (on the other side of this brochure) for explanation of the Agency Key.

How the PEPartnership works

All of the PEPartnership agencies provide products for personal and household hygiene. You're invited to use any of the PEPartnership agencies (check each agency's website for full eligibility requirements, if any). Products are distributed based on household composition and product lifespan across all PEPartnership agencies.

Each time you shop at a PEPartnership agency, you will receive a shopping list of all available products that your family is eligible to request at that visit.

You then check off the items from the list that your family currently needs, and volunteers will fill your order for you.

That means you can shop at any or all of the PEPartnership agencies to get the products you need, without having to re-register and answer the same set of questions each time.

Over time, we hope to have PEPartnership agencies across Madison and into greater Dane County, and greatly expanded products available at all PEPartnership agencies. For the most current information, please check the PEPartnership website at pepartnership.net under the PEPartnership tab.
